

1.3.1 QiM

As an affiliated college, the institution is dedicated to delivering the curriculum established and mandated by the University. This curriculum includes various courses designed to enhance awareness and sensitivity toward critical issues such as gender, human values, environmental sustainability, and professional ethics. It integrates a scientific approach to foster desirable thinking patterns and the capacity to address value-related issues, which are crucial for all aspects of human development. Among the elective subjects aimed at nurturing students' interest in entrepreneurship are courses like Pharma Marketing Management and Cosmetic Science.

To develop globally competent young professional pharmacists, the curriculum incorporates a Communication Skills course as a non-university examination paper. This course aims to equip budding pharmacy students with the ability to interact effectively with healthcare professionals such as doctors, nurses, dentists, physiotherapists, and other health workers. Through advanced learning methods like listening comprehension and the understanding of direct and indirect speech, students will acquire the soft skills necessary to work cohesively as team players, thereby adding value to the pharmaceutical industry.

The curriculum also includes a subject called Environmental Sciences, highlighting the importance of environmental education and the conservation of natural resources. This subject encompasses the scientific study of the environmental system and the effects of both natural and human-induced changes on organisms. It covers the physical and biological characteristics of the environment, as well as the social and cultural factors and human impact on the environment. The course provides an overview of the impacts on air, water, biological, and socio-economic aspects.

Pharmaceutical jurisprudence courses aim to enhance awareness of professional, moral, and social commitments. These courses provide fundamental knowledge of significant legislations related to the pharmacy profession in India, including the implementation of the Pharmacist's code of ethics in relation to their duties, trade, and the Pharmacist's oath. Additionally, they offer guidelines for preventing cruelty to animals, following CPCSEA standards during animal experiments, breeding, and stocking. The curriculum also includes the Narcotic Drugs Act, which educates students on controlling drug abuse and prohibiting opium cultivation.

Although the institution is located in a Sub-Urban area where higher education levels are not significantly advanced due to certain social issues such as a lack of awareness and sensitivity to gender, human values, environment, and sustainability, it strives to bridge this gap through its curriculum.

Moreover, the curriculum promotes an integrative learning process. Specific committees organize various activities that address cross-cutting issues, facilitating interdisciplinary thinking and collaborative learning among students. Regularly scheduled events such as induction sessions, expert talks on human values, yoga sessions, motivational speeches, spiritual discourses, blood donation camps, and personality development programs help instill core life values.

Community outreach programs are also an integral part of the institution's efforts. Activities such as environmental awareness campaigns in schools and villages, first aid camps, literacy, health and hygiene awareness programs, and communal harmony initiatives are organized through student clubs and the NSS, following an annual activity calendar.

Overall, the institution endeavors to instill a sense of societal responsibility and respect for the environment, human life, and values in every student, alongside developing the highest standards of professional behavior and personal integrity.
